

Instrument 5: The Life Goals Planner

The context “time” is used in this dimension as part of the conclusion of prior assessment. The planning integrates the findings resulting from the application of previous four (4) instruments (see especially the personal interview) and provides a systematization of teacher’s action relating to the next actions. With the same rationality of the other planners in the following phase, this instrument should be used as a flexible pathway to reach reflective goals from a teacher’s first contact with a student.
